Citywide Historical Crime Rates

Crime rates below are calculated based upon the Washington Office of Financial Management's population totals for the city of Seattle. Rates confer an advantage over totals because they represent the number of crime incidents relative to population size. While crime rates are not a proxy for understanding how likely any given person is to be a victim of a crime, they allow statements to be made about how much crime takes place within the city's population.

Violent Crime Rate: Calculated per 1,000

Property Crime Rate: Calculated per 10,000
