

Fair Chance Employment Ordinance

Seattle's Fair Chance Employment Ordinance (FCE) restricts how employers can use conviction and arrest records during the hiring process and course of employment within city limits.

GIVING PEOPLE WITH CONVICTION AND ARREST RECORDS A FAIR CHANCE TO WORK

THE FAIR CHANCE EMPLOYMENT ORDINANCE (FCE)<sup>1</sup>:

- Prohibits job ads that exclude applicants with conviction and arrest records by using language such as "Felons need not apply", "No criminal background" or "Clean background check".
- Prohibits questions on job applications and background checks about conviction and arrest records until after an employer conducts an initial screening to eliminate unqualified applicants.
- Requires an opportunity for the applicant or employee to explain or correct conviction and arrest information, and for the employer to hold the position open for at least two business days once they have notified the applicant that the employer plans to take an adverse action.
- Requires a legitimate business reason to deny a job based on conduct relating to an arrest, pending criminal charge or conviction record.

WHY IS FAIR CHANCE EMPLOYMENT IMPORTANT?

Increasing employment opportunities will reduce recidivism, reduce racial disparities in the criminal justice system and strengthen our community.

CAN AN EMPLOYER CONDUCT A BACKGROUND CHECK ON A JOB APPLICANT?

Yes, but only after the employer has completed an initial screening of applications to eliminate unqualified applicants.

WHAT ARE THE LIMITS ON USE OF ARREST AND CONVICTION RECORDS IN EMPLOYMENT DECISIONS?

An initial screening is a review of an applicant's qualifications to ensure that the applicant has the minimum qualifications necessary for the job.

Depending on the employer's hiring process, an initial screening may be a first review of written applications for minimum qualifications or a conversation with an applicant about their education or work experience.
