Sharing Our Updated
Transportation
Electrification Strategy

Seattle City Light is working toward a cleaner future with the 2025-2030 Transportation Electrification Strategic Investment Plan. This plan will improve electric vehicle charging stations, strengthen the power grid, and create a healthier environment for everyone. We're making it easier to charge electric cars, helping more people switch to clean transportation options, and preparing the grid for future energy needs. Check out our blog to learn more about how we're building a stronger, greener future — and join us in making a difference!

Plugged In

Do you want to better understand and manage how you use electricity? Starting mid-2025, we're introducing Time of Use (TOU) rates — a new way to help you manage your energy use. With TOU rates, the cost of electricity will depend on the time of day you use it, which can potentially save you money when using electricity during off-peak times. We're creating an online tool to help you decide if TOU rates are right for you. Continue reading to learn more about how this innovative approach could transform your energy usage.
