AUGUST 2025

How to Better Manage Your Energy with Our Upcoming Time of Use Rate

Starting in fall 2025, we're introducing a new Time of Use (TOU) rate designed to help you better manage energy bills for your home or small business. The TOU rate uses variable pricing based on the time of day. Peak hours (5 p.m. to 9 p.m.) will have the highest rates, while mid- and off-peak hours will be more affordable. By shifting energy-heavy activities to lower-cost times, you can reduce your bills and improve energy efficiency. Simple changes, like running appliances during off-peak hours or using smart home technology, can make a big difference. Read our latest blog for more information and to sign up for the TOU mailing list.

Spotlight

There's still time to join us for the Electric Car Guest Drive on August 23 at Seward Park in Seattle. Get behind the wheel of electric vehicles like the Ford F-150 Lightning and Kia EV6 — and check out a display of residential charging stations. Speak with experts on-site to answer your questions about charging solutions. Whether you register in advance or just walk in, this event is for everyone. Don't miss the chance to experience the future of driving — reserve your test drive today!

Plugged In

Over the next 10 years, the demand for electricity in our area is expected to double. To keep your energy affordable, reliable, and environmentally responsible, we are making plans for the future. This includes preparing for power outages caused by weather, replacing aging equipment, and supporting the switch to clean energy in our region. It also includes managing rising energy costs while staying committed to renewable energy. As we plan ahead, we want to hear from you!
