

THE INDEX V

Fall 2023

THE CHAMBER

seattle metropolitan chamber of commerce

Methodology

- Mixed-mode (live phone, email-to-web, and text-to-web) survey of Registered Voters in the City of Seattle
- Conducted September 14 – 24, 2023
- 700 completed interviews; effective margin of error: ± 3.9 points
- Data weighted by key demographic variables to accurately reflect the Registered Voter population
- Where available, results are compared to the survey of Seattle Registered Voters, conducted Spring 2023

*Please note that due to rounding, some percentages may not add up to exactly 100%.

Research Notes

- The sample universe for The Index is All Registered Voters (ARV), not Likely Voters (LV), because the focus is on tracking attitudes over time, not on modeling and analyzing the opinion environment for a specific election.
 - The Registered Voter universe is younger, more progressive, more likely to be renters, more likely to be new to the city, and more likely to be people of color.
- Six-in-10 Seattle voters identify as Democrats, making them the primary driver of overall opinion on all survey questions.

Summary

- The Index has leveled off after back-to-back increases, primarily due to increased voter concern about public safety.
 - The Index is now at 4.23 on a 0-to-10 scale – compared to 4.20 in the spring.
 - Overall optimism is statistically unchanged (33% right direction / 63% wrong track), as is voter perception of quality of life compared to 4 years ago (12% Better / 19% Same / 68% Worse).
 - Most ratings and attitudes are unchanged since the spring, with the exception of public safety related issues where concern is up across the board.
 - Concern about public safety (48%; +20 points) is at its highest level since The Index began in the fall of 2021 and is now tied with homelessness as the issue voters are most frustrated or concerned about.
 - Concerns about affordability have fallen slightly, but roughly 1-in-5 voters still cite it as a top concern.
- Despite the setback on public safety, most voters still say they are proud to call themselves a Seattleite and a majority agree that they are optimistic about the future of this region.

Summary

- Voter concern about public safety is evident throughout the survey.
 - “Addressing violent crime” (88%) has displaced “closing encampments” as the top action voters feel would most improve quality of life – and 3 of the top 4 actions are public safety related. Nearly two-thirds of voters (63%) say “addressing violent crime” would have “very significant impact.”
 - More than 8-in-10 say “helping local businesses deal with public safety concerns” (86%) and “addressing property crime like theft and car break ins” (81%) would improve quality of life with a majority saying these actions would have a “very significant impact” on quality of life.
 - Two-thirds of Seattle voters say that “hiring more police officers” and “addressing racially biased policing” would improve quality of life.
 - Three-in-four voters agree that “hiring more police officers should be an immediate priority of the City” with a majority of voters indicating they “strongly agree.”
 - Six-in-ten voters continue to say they feel less safe in their own neighborhood than they did two years ago, nearly a third say they would feel unsafe visiting downtown during the day and two-thirds say they would feel unsafe visiting downtown at night.

Quality of Life

Quality of Life: The Index

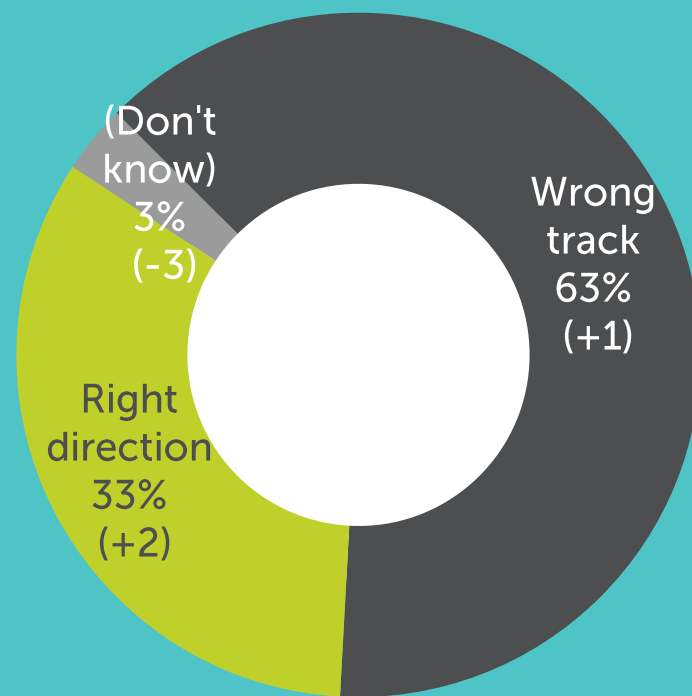

- After back-to-back increases, The Index is statistically unchanged from the spring survey.
- The Index aggregates the following quality of life survey questions:
 - Right Direction/Wrong Track
 - Quality of life compared to 4 years ago
 - Actively considered leaving Seattle
 - Optimism about the region’s future
 - Perception of safety
 - Concern about Downtown’s future
 - Likelihood to visit Downtown for activities other than work
- The Index does not include measures of local government or elected leaders.

Quality of Life: By the Numbers

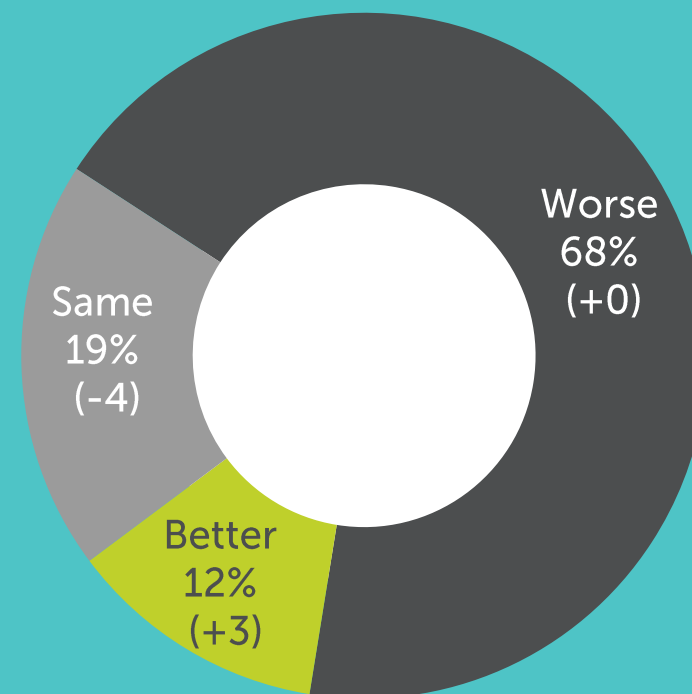

"Do you feel that things in the city of Seattle are generally going in the right direction, or do you feel things have gotten pretty seriously off on the wrong track?"

"I'm optimistic about the future of this region."

"Do you think the overall quality of life in Seattle is better, the same, or worse than it was 4 years ago?"

"I'm proud to call myself a Seattleite."

After improving for two consecutive surveys, optimism about the city and the region has flattened out as has the trend on overall quality of life.

Top Concerns

“What are the issues facing Seattle that you are most frustrated or concerned about?”

Homelessness and Public Safety continue to be the top concerns for Seattleites.

Top Three Concerns - Trend

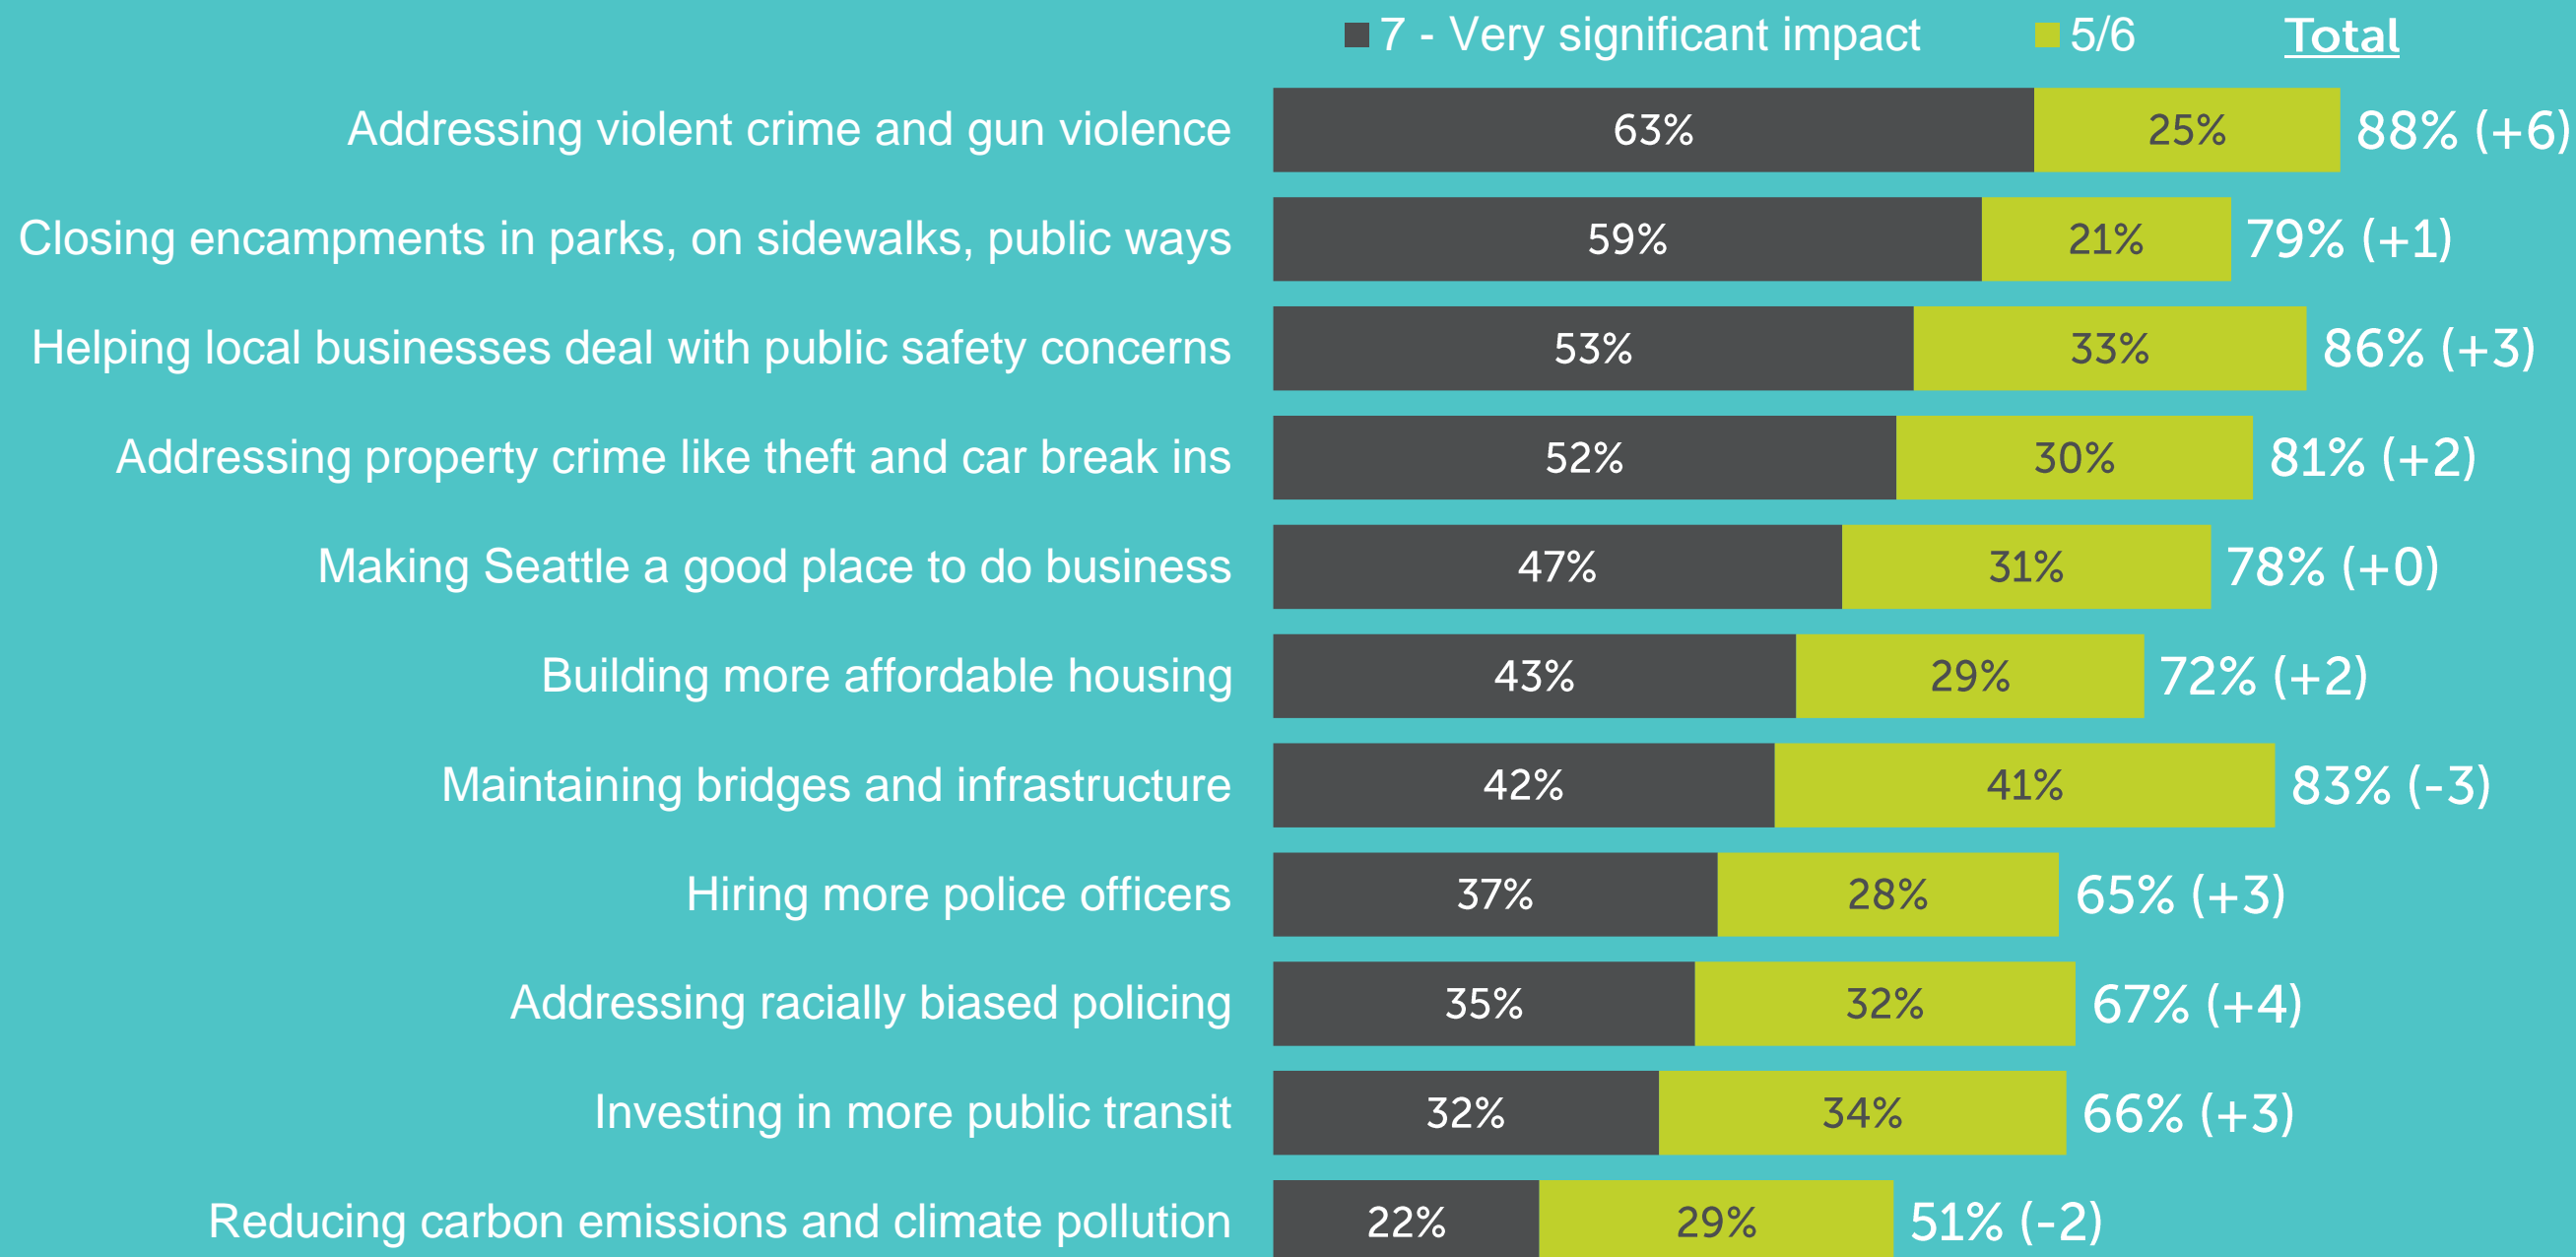

After a drop in the spring, concerns about public safety are on the rise again and are now on a par with concerns about homelessness. Affordability concerns are relatively flat.

Improving Quality of Life

“How much impact do you think each of the following would have on improving quality of life in Seattle?”

Addressing violent crime has displaced closing encampments as the action that voters feel would have the most impact on improving quality of life. Three of the top four items are public safety related.

Public Safety

Public Safety Downtown

"Thinking about safety in your neighborhood, including property crime and violent crime, would you say you feel more safe or less safe than you did two years ago?"

"I would feel safe visiting downtown Seattle during the day"

"I would feel safe visiting downtown Seattle at night"

A majority of Seattle voters continue to say they are feeling less safe in their own neighborhoods. One-in-three don't feel safe visiting downtown during the day and two-thirds say they would not feel safe visiting downtown at night.

Public Drug Use

"Seattle's hands-off approach to people using illegal drugs like fentanyl and meth in public is contributing to rampant street crime and is making it much harder for our city to recover"

"We should not enforce laws against public use of illegal drugs like fentanyl and meth until we first address the underlying issues driving addiction like economic inequality, lack of opportunity, and inadequate treatment options"

In two new questions, Seattle voters overwhelmingly agree, with 61% strongly agreeing, that the City's hands off approach to illegal public drug use is impeding downtown's recovery. And two thirds disagree, with 51% strongly disagreeing, that drug use laws should not be enforced until underlying causes are addressed.

Illegal Public Drug Use

Now I'd like to read you a set of statements. Please tell me which one is closest to your opinion.

Statement A: The City's hands off approach to public drug use is making our city unsafe. Illegal drug users need to be offered treatment first, but if they refuse, they need to be arrested and prosecuted.

Statement B: Arresting people for addiction is a return to the failed War on Drugs approach. It is not the solution to our current crisis and has repeatedly been shown to do more harm than good. People should never be arrested for addiction.

27%

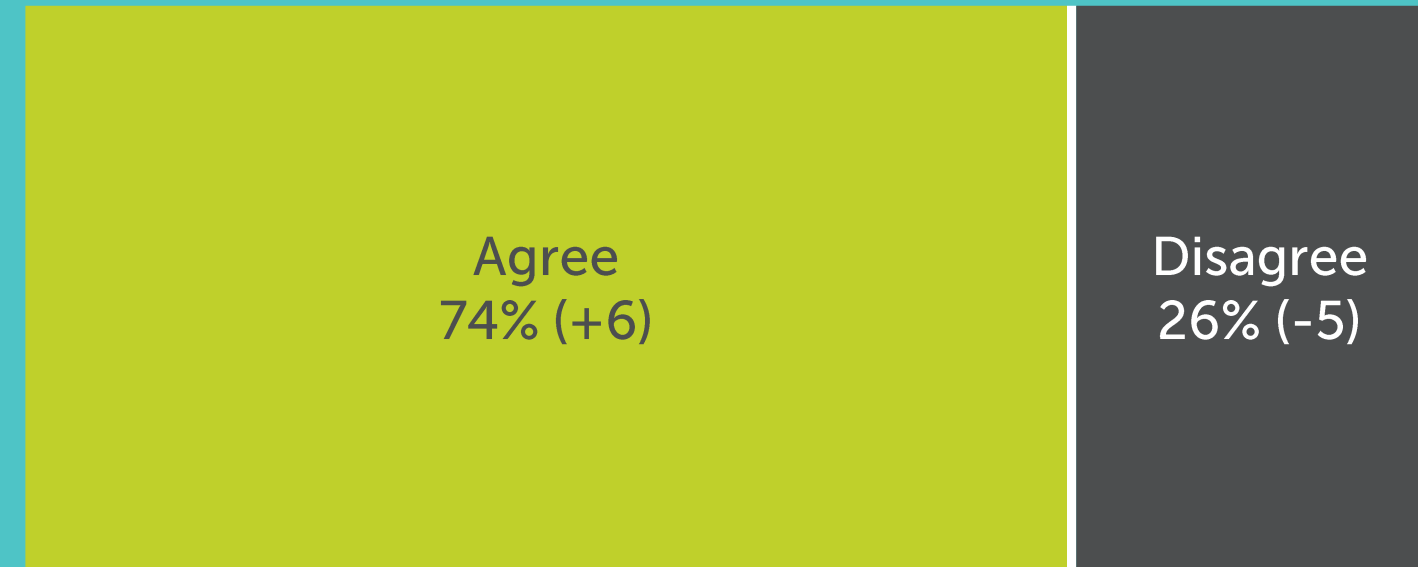

In another new question, by a 44-point margin Seattle voters say illegal drug users need to be arrested and prosecuted if they refuse treatment rather than left alone because arresting people for addiction is wrong and ineffective.

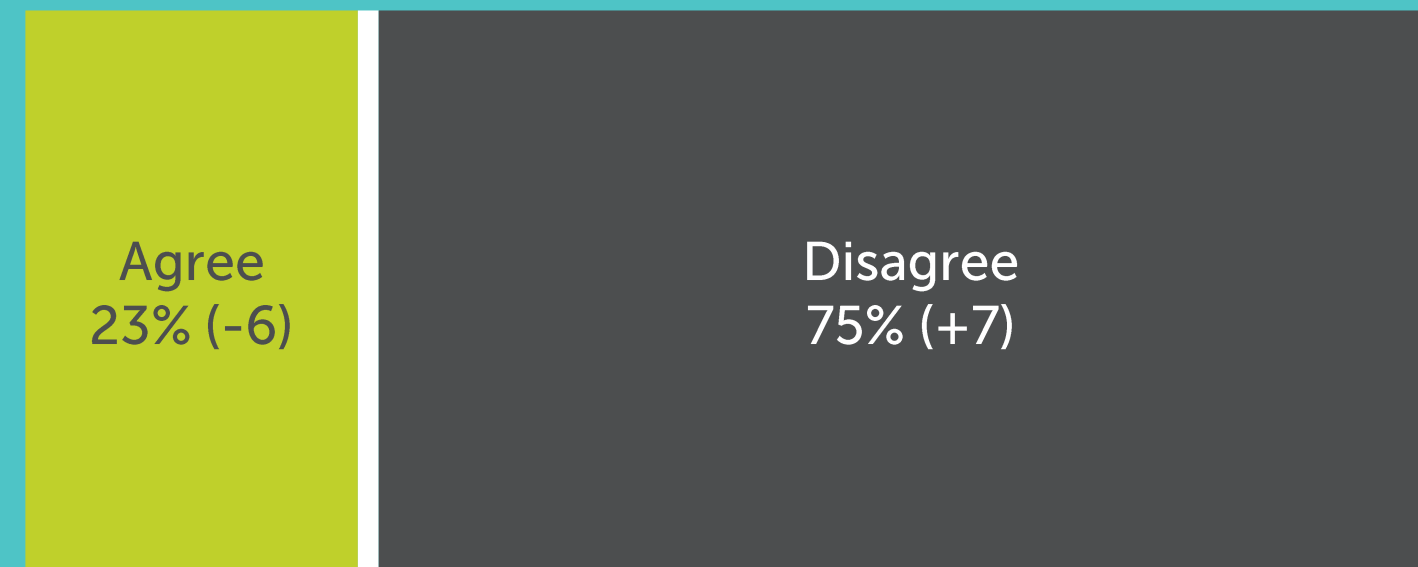

Addressing Public Safety

"Hiring more police officers should be an immediate priority for the City"

"I trust the Seattle City Council to reform the Seattle Police Department without endangering public safety"

A strong majority continue to agree the hiring more police officers needs to be an immediate priority and three quarters now say they DO NOT trust this City Council to reform SPD.

Safety Downtown: Nighttime

Would Feel Safe Visiting Downtown at Night

■ Strongly Agree ■ Somewhat Agree

Socialists are the only subgroup where a majority say they would feel safe visiting downtown at night.

Safety in Own Neighborhood

Feel Less Safe in Own Neighborhood than Two Years Ago

■ Much Less Safe ■ Somewhat Less Safe

Roughly 6-in-10 voters in all three regions of the city say they feel less safe in their own neighborhood than they did two years ago. Partisan identification is a strong driver of attitudes about neighborhood safety.

Prioritize Hiring More Officers

Prioritizing Hiring More Police Officers

■ Strongly Agree ■ Somewhat Agree

A strong majority of voters in every subgroup except Socialists say the city should immediately prioritize hiring more officers.

Trust Council to Reform SPD

Trust City Council to Reform SPD without Endangering Public Safety

■ Strongly Agree ■ Somewhat Agree

Very few voters trust the City Council to reform SPD without endangering public safety.

Hands-Off Approach Contributing to Crime

Seattle's Hands-Off Approach Contributing to Crime

■ Strongly Agree ■ Somewhat Agree

Three-quarters or more of voters in every subgroup except Socialists think Seattle's hands off approach to illegal public drug use is contributing to street crime and making it harder for the city to recover.

Must Address Underlying Issues First

Address Underlying Issues Causing Addiction before Enforcement

■ Strongly Agree ■ Somewhat Agree

Only Socialists agree that laws against public drug use should NOT be enforced until the underlying conditions contributing to addiction are addressed.

Trust The City Has An Effective Plan

Trust that the City has an effective plan to address the critical issues facing our city

■ Strongly Agree ■ Somewhat Agree

Across subgroups voters do NOT believe that the city has an effective plan to address critical issues.
