GLASS EYE STUDIO

On behalf of the entire Glass Eye Studio, I'm pleased to present the new 2020 catalog

The studio continues to thrive since its inception 40 years ago with the same drive, spirit and passion that brought the founding group of glass artists together all those years ago in Seattle's Pike Place Market. Honoring our artistic heritage is one of our core values and the refined techniques and knowledge passed down through generations of highly skilled artisans continues to this day. The creative will-power of our experienced and dedicated team is also driving a significant evolution within the studio and you'll notice an exciting new chapter of our legacy within the following pages. As always, we take great pride in designing and making our products in our Seattle, Washington-based hotshop.

Wishing you a very happy and productive 2020!

CHRISTMAS PICKLE

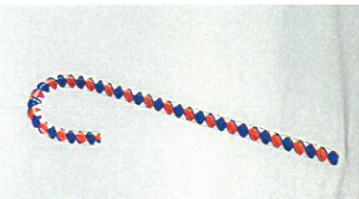

BELOVED TRADITION

There's much folklore about how it began and no real agreement about its true origin but somehow, the Christmas pickle has become a tradition. As the story goes, the pickle is hidden on the tree with the first to find it receiving a special gift or good fortune for the following year, depending on which version you believe.

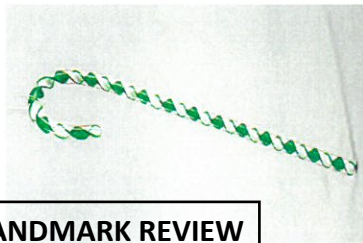

Regardless of how it came about, it's kind of a big deal for many families during the holiday season.

When Seattle city officials told a group of sailors that they could only hold their regatta in Lake Union if they didn't disturb the ducks, they dubbed it the Duck Dodge and did just that.

They've been gathering to raise their sails every Tuesday in the summer since 1974.

Named after the beloved Seattle tradition, this collaboration with glass artist Ryan Blythe and creative director Piper O'Neill is based on the originals from 2002 but re-imagined with bright new colors.
