RE: Comments on Proposed Amendments to Chapter 173-201A WAC Water Quality Standards for Surface Waters of the State of Washington

Dear Ms. Niemi:

We are writing on behalf of the Seattle Human Rights Commission (the “Commission”) to express our view on the proposed amendments to Chapter 173-201A WAC Water Quality Standards (“WQS”) for surface waters of the State of Washington.

The people of Seattle and of Washington State have fundamental human rights to health and to the conditions that promote health. This right is recognized in Article 12 of the International Covenant on Economic, Social, and Cultural Rights (“ICESCR”). Seattleites and Washingtonians also have a basic human right to subsistence, as recognized in multiple international human rights instruments. To wit, Article 1 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (which the U.S. has ratified) and Article 1 of the ICESCR (which the U.S. has signed) both provide that “in no case may a people be deprived of its own means of subsistence.” Indigenous peoples also have a right to subsistence, and to preservation of their traditional economies, as recognized in Article 20(1) of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples (the “Declaration”): “Indigenous peoples have the right . . . to be secure in the enjoyment of their own means of subsistence and development, and to engage freely in all their traditional and other economic activities.” Finally, and significantly with respect to Washington treaty tribes, Article 37(1) of the Declaration also recognizes that “[i]ndigenous peoples have the right to the recognition, observance and enforcement of treaties.”

Given these international human rights-based precepts, the Commission strongly urges the Department of Ecology to uphold human rights standards for Washingtonians, especially those who live in the City of Seattle, by taking the following steps with regards to the proposed rule:

1. Accept the proposed fish consumption rate of 175 g/day set forth in language proposed for the new WAC 173-201A-240(5)(b) so that Washingtonians may someday safely consume one fish meal a day from fish caught in Washington waters. This standard more closely matches what many fish consuming Washingtonians already consume.

2. Reject the proposed tenfold increase in cancer risk level from one in a million (10^{-6}) to one in 100,000 (10^{-5}) as proposed in new Footnote C to Table 240, and as proposed to be stricken from existing WAC 173-201A-240(6). The proposed tenfold increase in cancer risk level should be rejected and the existing, more protective cancer risk level should remain in place.

The culture and economy of the City of Seattle and of Washington State are strongly rooted in fish, and many of us seek to feed ourselves, our families, and our communities with the fish we catch. We should be able to eat fish caught in Washington waters without fearing that we have exposed ourselves or our loved ones to harmful levels of toxics, or that we have placed ourselves or our loved ones at undue risk of cancer or chronic diseases. The proposed rule also raises a serious health equity issue with respect to state residents of Native American, Asian, and Pacific Islander heritage. Those residents are at disproportionate risk of adverse effects with respect to the change in cancer risk level because they consume fish at significantly higher rates than the general public. For example, Lummi tribal members consume fish at a rate of 800 grams per day at the 90th percentile of that population, and members of Asian and Pacific Islander communities in the State consume fish at a rate of 236 grams per day at the 90th percentile of that population. To get a sense for what this means for Seattle residents, a low fish consumption rate or a high cancer risk level could leave roughly 15 percent of Seattleites, or 91,299 individuals, without basic health and human rights protections when they consume fish caught in our State's waters.¹ Other vulnerable populations such as low-income and immigrant communities rely on fish caught in State waters to put food on their tables, and they too stand at disproportionate risk under the proposed tenfold increase to our cancer risk level.

Your proposed increase in the State fish consumption rate to 175 grams per day is a tremendous stride in the direction of providing greater human health and human rights protections to Seattleites and Washingtonians because it will allow them to safely eat one fish meal per day instead of one fish meal per month, as under the existing rule. We commend you for that proposal. However, your proposed tenfold increase in the cancer risk level from one in a million to one in 100,000 is unacceptable and substantially undermines gains for Seattle and Washington-based fish consumers that would otherwise be made in the proposed increase in the fish consumption rate. This tenfold increase in cancer risk level would mark a tremendous stride backwards for Washington, and will undermine the health and human rights of fish consumers in our City and State.

Please, don't ignore internationally-recognized human rights. Do the right thing and protect the health and human rights of Washington and Seattle fish consumers. Please listen to the over 1500 Washingtonians who have submitted comments urging you to protect their health and human rights by accepting the increased fish consumption rate and rejecting the tenfold increase in our cancer risk level. You should have received those comments directly, but in case you have not, please find them attached. Please also find attached comments transcribed from the public hearing that the Commission held in Seattle on Tuesday, March 17. Please include the video recording of that hearing (available at

We regret that you were unable to attend the Commission's public hearing, and we continue to urge you to hold an Ecology-led public hearing here in Seattle so that the substantial population that lives here will have an opportunity to engage with you on this exceedingly important health and human rights matter.

1963 – 2015 · 52 years of championing human rights and fostering a just future

Resolution No. 15-02 – Calling on the City of Seattle to Urge Washington State to Revise its Water Quality Standards in a Manner Protective of Human Health and Human Rights

WHEREAS, all people are born free and equal in dignity and rights; and

WHEREAS, the Seattle Human Rights Commission (the “Commission”) is committed to protecting and advocating for justice, human rights, and the equal treatment of all people who live and work in Seattle; and

WHEREAS, the City of Seattle was declared to be a Human Rights City on December 10, 2012, committing itself to protect, respect, and fulfill the full range of inherent human rights for all as set forth in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and numerous other international human rights treaties; and

WHEREAS, the right to health and the right to conditions that enable health are internationally-recognized human rights outlined in Article 12 of the International Covenant on Economic, Social, and Cultural Rights; and

WHEREAS, Article 1 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, which the U.S. has ratified, and Article 1 of the International Covenant on Economic, Social, and Cultural Rights, which the U.S. has signed, both provide that “in no case may a people be deprived of its own means of subsistence”; and

WHEREAS, Article 20(1) of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples establishes and protects the right of indigenous peoples “to be secure in the enjoyment of their own means of subsistence”; and

WHEREAS, a state’s fish consumption rate and cancer risk level are used to set safe and acceptable levels of pollutants that may be released into a state’s waters while still protecting the health of its citizens who consume fish harvested from the state’s waters; and

WHEREAS, a state’s fish consumption rate and cancer risk level directly impact a state’s water quality standards and human health criteria; and

WHEREAS, the State of Washington (the “State”) has a fish consumption rate of 6.5 grams per day (approximately one fish meal per month) and a cancer risk level of 10^{-6} (one in a million); and

WHEREAS, the Washington State Department of Health advises Washingtonians to consume two 226 gram servings of fish per week, a recommendation that substantially exceeds the State's existing 6.5 grams per day fish consumption rate; and

WHEREAS, contaminated fish are the primary pathway for human exposure to chemicals which cause cancer, irreversible neurological damage, and other harmful effects to human health and well-being; and

WHEREAS, the State's low fish consumption rate does not protect fish consumers from unsafe levels of toxics including but not limited to methyl mercury, Polychlorinated Biphenyls (PCBs), and arsenic; and

WHEREAS, Seattle has a strong fish-oriented culture and economy; and

WHEREAS, Seattleites consume a great deal of fish, and should be able to do so free from fear of exposing themselves to harmful levels of toxics or to undue risk of cancer; and

WHEREAS, members of Asian and Pacific Islander communities in the State consume fish at a rate of 236 grams per day in the 90th percentile of those surveyed; and

WHEREAS, Lummi tribal members consume fish at the rate of 800 grams per day at the 90th percentile and the Spokane Tribe has set its fish consumption rate to 865 grams per day to reflect its members' true fish consumption rate; and

WHEREAS, fishing and the consumption of fish holds immense cultural value and is considered a subsistence right within all communities in Washington State and Seattle; and

WHEREAS, human rights and public health standards are meant to protect all individuals, especially those most vulnerable; and

WHEREAS, the Washington State Department of Ecology ("DOE") has proposed to increase the State's fish consumption rate to 175 grams per day and to increase the cancer risk level tenfold from one in a million to one in 100,000; and

WHEREAS, almost thirty percent of the State population lives in King County; and

WHEREAS, DOE has scheduled three public hearings, all south of King County.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the Commission hereby calls upon the Seattle Mayor and City Council to submit formal written comments before the March 23 comment deadline urging DOE to (1) move forward in resetting the State's fish consumption rate to 175 grams per day and (2) reject the tenfold increase to Washingtonians' cancer risk level.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the Seattle Human Rights Commission hereby calls upon the Mayor and City Council to attend a public hearing on the proposed changes in the fish consumption rate and the cancer risk level that the Commission has scheduled at Seattle City Hall (Bertha Knight Landes Room) on Tuesday, March 17 from 6 to 8 p.m (the “Seattle Public Hearing”).

NOW THEREFORE BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the Seattle Human Rights Commission hereby calls upon the Mayor and City Council to formally request that DOE attend the Seattle Public Hearing.

Resolution 14-01: Calling on Washington State Department of Ecology to Raise the Statewide Fish Consumption Rate

WHEREAS, all people are born free and equal in dignity and rights; and

WHEREAS, the Seattle Human Rights Commission is committed to protecting and advocating for justice, human rights, and the equal treatment of all people who live and work in Seattle; and

WHEREAS, the City of Seattle was declared to be a Human Rights City on December 10, 2012, committing itself to protect, respect and fulfill the full range of inherent human rights for all as set forth in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and numerous other international human rights treaties; and

WHEREAS, health is an internationally-recognized human right outlined in Article 12 of the International Covenant on Economic, Social, and Cultural Rights; and

WHEREAS, Article 20(1) of the U.N. Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples establishes and protects the right of indigenous peoples “to be secure in the enjoyment of their own means of subsistence” and Article 20(2) creates a basis for “just and fair redress” where indigenous peoples are deprived of these rights; and

WHEREAS, a state’s fish consumption rate is used to set safe and acceptable levels of pollutants that may be released into a state’s waters while still protecting the health of its citizens who consume fish harvested from the state’s waters; and

WHEREAS, a state’s fish consumption rate directly impacts its water quality standards and human health criteria; and

WHEREAS, the State of Washington has a fish consumption rate of 6.5 g/day; and

WHEREAS, Washington State’s Department of Health advises Washingtonians to consume two 226 gram servings of fish per week, a recommendation that substantially exceeds Washington State’s fish consumption rate; and

WHEREAS, contaminated fish are the primary pathway for human exposure to chemicals which cause cancer, irreversible neurological damage, and other harmful effects to human health and well-being; and

WHEREAS, the State of Washington's low fish consumption rate does not protect fish consumers from unsafe levels of toxics including but not limited to methyl mercury, Polychlorinated Biphenyls (PCBs), and arsenic; and

WHEREAS, the State of Oregon, with a similar fish consumption-oriented population, recognized the severe threat to human health posed by a low fish consumption rate and thus set a new rate of 175 g/day at a risk level of 10^{-6} that would be protective of 95% of its overall fish consuming public; and

WHEREAS, members of Asian and Pacific Islander communities in Washington State consume fish at the rate of 306 g/day in the 95th percentile of those surveyed; and

WHEREAS, the Spokane Tribe in Washington State set its fish consumption rate to 865 g/day to reflect the true fish consumption of its members; and

WHEREAS, fishing and the consumption of fish holds immense cultural value and is considered a subsistence right within Asian and Pacific Islander and tribal communities; and

WHEREAS, human rights and public health standards are meant to protect all individuals, especially those most vulnerable;

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the Seattle Human Rights Commission hereby calls upon the Washington State Department of Ecology to raise its fish consumption rate to that of Oregon's at 175 g/day using a risk level of 10^{-6} to ensure that all Washingtonians, even our highest fish consumers, are protected in the free and equal exercise of our human rights to health and our own means of subsistence.

Chris Wilke, chris@pugetsoundkeeper.org

My name is Chris Wilke, and I am the Executive Director at Puget Soundkeeper Alliance. I would like to thank Ms. Ethel Branch and this evening's panelists.

Puget Soundkeeper's mission is to preserve and protect Puget Sound. We work with three other Waterkeeper organizations in Washington State as well as Earthjustice. We also work with the Northwest Indian Fisheries Commission and several Pacific Northwest tribes on issues pertaining to Washington's Water Quality Standards. Various tribal members have told us that "this is the most important issue for many of their members."

I wanted to use a little bit of time here to discuss the historical context of the Clean Water Act. Revising and updating water quality standards is a required regulatory process under the federal Clean Water Act. The Clean Water Act was designed to protect designated uses of our waters, and it mandates that every waterway in the United States be fishable and swimmable. It is our duty to uphold these standards. The desired effects of the regulations imposed by the Clean Water Act are to limit industrial pollution and wastewater discharges. That being said, it is critical to understand that wastewater assimilation is not a designated use of any of our waterways. Rather, it is wastewater that has to comply with protecting the designated uses of our waters. We should not be amending designated uses so that they comply with the wastewater needs.

Since this is the Seattle Human Rights Commission, I would also like to talk briefly about the human rights context. On July 28th, 2010, the General Assembly of the United Nations declared that public access to clean water was a basic human right. Last fall I traveled to the nation of Colombia in South America, which has a constitutional fundamental human right to clean water. In Colombia, citizens are able to individually enforce their right to clean water. This business about this being a policy decision about where to set peoples cancer risk rate is nothing more than the Washington State Department of Ecology juking the statistics to make the end point number come out at the exact same point as it was before. This is unacceptable.

There is a concept called the public trust doctrine, and it is one way that we hold our public agencies accountable. The public trust doctrine charges our public agencies with the responsibility to protect the commons: our air, our land, and our water. The trust doctrine is not a specific law, but rather a body of laws that has been formed throughout several centuries. The origins of the trust doctrine can be traced to the Roman emperor Justinian. The trust was affirmed in the Magna Carta, and it has since been held forward in many aspects of our modern law.

Washington's Department of Ecology is treading dangerously close to its sister organization in Alabama, which recently changed its name from the Department of Environmental Quality to the Department of Environmental Management. We believe Washington's Department of Ecology can do better.

I mentioned earlier that Washington's Department of Ecology has proposed an increase to the PCB rate by an additional factor of four. Not surprisingly, the Department of Ecology did not disseminate this information widely. That might be due to the fact that increasing the PCB rate by an additional factor of four leads to a forty-fold increase in the cancer risk rate. Such an increase to the PCB rate completely offsets the twenty-seven-fold increase in the Department's fish consumption rate. Again, this is unacceptable.

We have a fish consumption advisory warning for every Chinook salmon caught in Puget Sound. The resident fish that are here year round – because you have to ask the resident fish if they reside here year round – have a warning of no more than two meals per month. In other words, if a meal is defined as eight ounces on a plate, that leaves an individual with only sixteen ounces or one pound per month. If you catch or purchase a twelve-pound fish, it would take you a full year to eat that fish. Interestingly enough, the Washington's Department of Fish and Wildlife will happily provide a punch card for twenty Chinook salmon, even though you would need to have a family size of twenty persons to safely consume that much fish.

The Washington Department of Health is gladly posting fish consumption warnings. In fact, the Department of Health has posted signs along the Duwamish River in eight different languages. Unfortunately, we have received information that people are now fishing at night, which is unacceptable.

Heather Trim, heatrim@gmail.com

I am Heather Trim. I am speaking tonight on behalf of the Sierra Club. One, this is an incredible environmental justice issue. Two, Ecology's staff did a very detailed scientifically-based assessment that was not then used, unfortunately, in the decision that was put forward for the proposal. And three, is that there is a very major problem in amendment, the rule amendment which is being put forward...which is the off-ramp. The dischargers are going to be allowed to, instead of having a ten year cap on their legal status in terms of waiting to be able to comply, it's going to be indefinite, and that is a major problem. Plus, instead of having the variances be a five year renewal, it is going to be longer, and there was no time limit set on that. So the challenge here is that there is an off-ramp, which makes sense because it is going to take some time for dischargers to be able to make the standards, but it was made to be indefinite. Thanks.

Rick Eichstaedt, ricke@cforjustice.org

My name is Rick Eichstaedt. I'm the Executive Director of the Center for Justice in Spokane, Washington, and I had an opportunity to testify at the Spokane hearing. I do find it ironic that there was a Spokane hearing where six of us showed up, a Yakima hearing where no people testified, and an Olympia hearing—but not one here, in the most populous of counties in our state.

I mentioned I'm with the Center for Justice. We're a social and environmental justice firm. We house the Spokane River Keeper. We represent low income people. Many of our clients are Russian immigrants. Many of our clients are homeless. We work with and represent Native Americans individually and Native American groups. All these populations eat quite a bit more fish than certainly the 6.5, the 17.5, or in some cases even the 175 grams of fish per day.

We're actually lucky in Spokane. We have, as was mentioned earlier in the question and answer, a fish consumption rate that really governs everybody, because they're downstream. The Spokane Tribe adopted a standard of 865 grams of fish per day.

Now the politics of this issue: it's not that there was some wonderful study that said let's do 175 and 10^{-5} . It's Governor Inslee tried to figure out how he can keep Boeing. And they don't like that number either. And so this crappy number—certainly the risk assessment—coupled with a legislative package, which isn't faring very well, was meant to be the compromise for our state to try to, in part, appease Boeing as well as to make all of us, and tribes, and others happy. And it doesn't seem to be making too many of us happy.

But the important thing: we're dealing with 865 grams at 10^{-6} , one in a million, on the Spokane River. We're not shut down. We have industry. We have wastewater treatment plants. And we're trying to figure it out. Is it hard? Yes. It's really hard. But, as has been mentioned a couple of times, we had a goal under the Clean Water Act: by 1983—1983—our waters were supposed to be fishable, swimmable. We're far from that, and this isn't helping.

As has been mentioned by a couple of speakers, the standards for PCBs, methylmercury, and arsenic—three of the most dangerous contaminants on the list that we're trying to regulate—are not any more protective.¹ In fact, arsenic increases five hundred times. It's not that they're not making it any better; they're making it worse. They're trying to adopt some other standard, because it's really hard to deal with it.

This is an environmental justice issue. We've heard from tribes, we've heard from others. I think it's important to note that the National Congress of American Indians in 2013 passed a resolution that said at least 175 and at least 10^{-6} . That's an organization that represents tribes across the nation, and they spoke. Loudly. And it's good that tribes are speaking out on this issue because, thankfully, EPA is starting to listen. They're starting, and this is incredibly rare, and we support, our organization, the efforts of EPA to do the rules on its own.

We would like Ecology to do the right thing, and we call upon Ecology to do the right thing, but frankly, I don't know if we can trust Ecology to do the right thing. So, Ecology, if you can't do it right, stop, and let EPA do it.

Jamie Stroble, jmstroble@gmail.com

I work for a local Asian Pacific Islander-serving nonprofit, and I identify with the Asian Pacific Islander community as well. I work primarily with low-income youth and immigrant and refugee youth. When I brought this issue up, a lot of them were saying “well, that doesn’t make any sense to me,” and a lot of them have no idea any of this stuff is happening. They just eat fish every day. Every single day. They say, “well, my mom eats three fish in a week” or “when we get a whole salmon, I am going to be finishing a fourth of that every single time I’m eating a meal.” We hear a lot of numbers, we hear a lot of technical words behind this, but I also just want to bring this back to the fact that these are real people that live in the state that are being acutely affected, and also may not have the voice to be up here themselves. So it is important from a social justice issue and human rights perspective that the Department of Ecology does the right thing.

Recipient: EPA and Washington State Department of Ecology

Letter: Greetings,

I am writing to express my support for the updated, more realistic fish consumption rate of 175 g/day. I am also writing to express my alarm at the proposed tenfold increase to my cancer risk level. I am also concerned that the proposal allows levels of PCBs to remain the same throughout the state, and allows other contaminants, including potent neurotoxins and known cancer-causing pollutants, to remain at their current levels.

Washingtonians deserve standards that are protective of our human rights to health and to an environment that protects our health. Thus, please (1) reject the proposed change to our Cancer Risk Level so that I can remain protected with a one in a million chance of getting cancer rather than a one in a 100,000 chance, and (2) move forward in resetting the Fish Consumption Rate from 6.5 g/day to 175 g/day. This will better protect my human right to health as a fish consumer, and the human rights of communities that consume fish at disproportionately high rates, such as members of the Asian and Pacific Islander communities in our State—who at the 90th percentile consume fish at a rate of 236 g/day—and Native Americans in our State—who consume fish at an even higher rate (the Lummi fish consumption rate at the 90th percentile is about 800 g/day; the Spokane Tribe set its fish consumption rate to 865 g/day to reflect the large volumes of fish its members consume).

Please, do the right thing and don't violate my human rights, or the human rights of my fellow Washingtonians. Do not adopt the proposed changes as-is. The proposed rule leaves pollution permit limits for industry and businesses unchanged while increasing the burden on me and communities and individuals dependent on local seafood. Instead, revise the draft as requested above to establish stronger water quality standards that will lead to cleaner, safer waterways for every Washingtonian.

Our government has an obligation to protect us and our water from dangerous pollution. Please step up and fulfill your obligation. If Ecology does not follow the law and protect public health, I fully support EPA assuming its obligation to step in and protect me and those who rely on local fish and shellfish.

Please also allow me to provide oral testimony on this important issue by hosting a public hearing here in Seattle.

Steve Robinson	Olympia, WA	2015-03-02	Because although I am supportive of a healthy economy I realize that a truly healthy economy is a sustainable economy. That means our businesses and industries MUST make whatever changes are necessary to assure we have a clean environment. We can no longer compromise the health of our children or the health of our fish, wildlife and ecosystem (ALL of which ARE interconnected) for the sake of short term profits. The FCR must be raised in this state (175 gpd minimum) and it is absolutely wrong to raise cancer risks, even if there is a plan to replace toxic chemicals one at a time. We have got to be better stewards of the environment than that if we hope to meet the many challenges we face, ranging from non-point pollution and industrial discharge to climate change and ocean acidification.
Rogina Beckwith	Kingston, WA	2015-03-02	I support the State's proposal to increase the fish consumption rate to one fish meal per day (and to reject the tenfold increase to our cancer risk level). please advance health equity.

Tammy DeCoteau	Kingston, WA	2015-03-03	I am a Native American Indian and as so, eating fish is one of our main source of food; along with shellfish. I urge you to reject the tenfold increase for the health and safety of our children, our future, our human race.
Kirstin Gruver	Seattle, WA	2015-03-03	I'm signing because water is a natural resource that we cannot replenish and once it is polluted and contaminated, you cannot cost-effectively fix it. Moreover, water quality is essential for every single citizen in this state. It cross all socio-economic divides and it's something that we all need to survive. Destroying our water destroys our way of life, the food we eat, and what it means to live healthy.
Steven Moe	Kingston, WA	2015-03-03	I live on Hood Canal. We can still eat from the sea in my neighborhood. It needs to stay that way forever. Fish consumption rates need to be realistic and promote the benefits of eating seafood, for harvesters, locavores, and general consumers alike. Adjusting the cancer risk level is not protective of human health or water quality.
vanessa castle	Snohomish, WA	2015-03-03	I consume fish at least twice a week if not more.
Phil Katzen	Seattle, WA	2015-03-03	I eat at least 5 servings of fish per week, and often well above that. Increasing the fish consumption rate while at the same time allowing a ten-fold increase in the cancer risk is a bad joke; it does nothing to provide additional necessary protection for people who include fish in their diet. The change in cancer risk levels should be rejected.
Darrell Phare	Bellingham, WA	2015-03-03	Current standards and current WA policies and ways of doing business regarding the environment and natural resources of WA do not pay adequate respect to tribal treaties and their right to co-manage these resources and rights retained by them via the treaties.

Peter van der Ven	Seattle, WA	2015-03-09	As a healthcare professional, I care very much about the health of our state's citizens. Condoning a proposal that increases our cancer risk is just wrong.
Penny Lewis	Seattle, WA	2015-03-09	It makes sense to me to change the standards once we have cleaned up the water these fish swim in and thus decrease the chances that they will cause cancer in those who dine on them.
Cathy Miler	Shoreline, WA	2015-03-09	I'd rather be safe than dead
Jill Bremer	Chehalis, WA	2015-03-09	I care about our health, water quality, a and eating fish
Irene Bensinger	Eatonville, WA	2015-03-09	This issue is crucial for our Native American citizens who rely heavily on salmon.
Marilyn Overton	Edmonds, WA	2015-03-09	I care about improved health for all.
Myunghee O	Mukilteo, WA	2015-03-09	Oh my!!!
Timm Trust	Tacoma, WA	2015-03-09	Your "freedom" to make money shouldn't stand in the way of citizens' freedom to live a full life without corporations poisoning the water

Laura Kiely	Seattle, WA	2015-03-09	Everyone deserves to live a cancer free life. Our lives are worth more than somebody else's bottom line.
Flavia Bibby	Roleystone, WA	2015-03-09	States need to maintain current more protective risk level
Gavin Green	Bainbridge Island, WA	2015-03-09	I'm signing this because as a man who was infected with HIV, and Hepatitis C from the American blood supply, and subsequently watched hundreds of fellow Hemophiliac's die, due to the US FDA not ensuring the blood supply was safe - 1 of their mandates, I will no longer be quiet when I see a governmental agency, who's ONLY reason for existance is to insure safety of the environment for citizens of this country, to blatantly fail to carry out it's responsibility, perhaps the Republicans are right, we should abolished the useless EPA, since they always side with big business , less protection for citizens anyway. Sincerely, Gavin Green
Sean Pedersen	Issaquah, WA	2015-03-09	If we recognize the real cost of fossil fuel use and force polluters (coal plants, etc.), to correctly manage their toxic wastes, then non-polluting sources will become more of a value, and the environment will be cleaner. We should do it for ourselves, and we should do it for our children.
Donna West	Shoreline, WA	2015-03-09	I want my family to stay and be healthy and know our water is safe!
Danny Dwinell	Shoreline, WA	2015-03-09	Outrageous.
Lehman Holder	Vancouver, WA	2015-03-09	Increased risk of developing cancer is completely unacceptable.
Michael Phoenix	Seattle, WA	2015-03-09	I don't consider myself a huge fish consumer. I eat sushi when I can afford to. I love a good salmon fillet in season. And I try to eat fish a couple of times a week for good health. Which means that I'm eating something like 10 times the amount of fish that pollution standards are based on. Those standards are ridiculous. Let's replace them with realistic standards that protect our health.
Nic Little	seattle, WA	2015-03-09	I'm signing because my six year old twins love fish.
Nancy Barr	Seattle, WA	2015-03-09	I eat fish regularly and want to be sure I stay healthy.
Rick Eichstaedt	Spokane, WA	2015-03-09	We deserve fishable, swimmable lakes and rivers in Washington.
Linda Gruer	Shelton, WA	2015-03-09	We must hold our standards and stay away from a slippery slope. We already have a potential increased risk from Fukushima. We need to eat more fish, but it needs to be safe.
Harriet Kuhnlein	Anacortes, WA	2015-03-09	We need standards that protect the fish as well as those of us who consume fish regularly.
Jerry Davis	Bellingham, WA	2015-03-09	The state needs to make sure they drink all water they are not protecting before feeding it to anyone else. Anyway, it all about the money. Anymore the Gov't. can be bought off just like all the rest of the money whores.
Randi Pewzner	Seattle, WA	2015-03-09	Would be nice if we could get rid of fluoridation, also.
Pamel Stewart	Snoqualmie, WA	2015-03-09	I'm signing because I want to help decrease the risks of cancer.
Paul James	bellingham, WA	2015-03-09	We all have a right to health and clean water, so do fish, and our children.
Marion Clair	Port Townsend, WA	2015-03-09	My husband is an avid and successful sport fisherman. We do eat the fish he catches several times a week all year long. The thought of our cancer risk increasing because the fish we consume are surrounded by waters with even higher levels of toxic chemicals than those are allowed now, is alarming and infuriating because it is AVOIDABLE!

Gabe Sheoships	Portland, OR	2015-03-10	If you eat fish or not you should be concerned for their health and contaminant levels. Fish are indicator species and their environmental contaminant levels reflect their environment. Erica Munton	Bothell, WA	2015-03-10	If the state wants me (and thousands of others) to continue eating, and even upping my consumption of fish, they'd better not change the risk level of cancer to one in 100,000. Sue Patnude	Elma, WA	2015-03-12	DO NOT compromise our health to keep corporations happy. Corporations polluting practices are why we have water quality standards and the Clean Water Act!! Compromising our health for their benefit is against the law. Inslee's negotiated solution does not work!!!
Lor Anderson	Seattle, WA	2015-03-12	It is important to protect our food sources especially fish from toxic chemicals. Fish is especially important given how it is a major food source for so many people who are economically marginalized. Fish is a major source of protein for many people. raising allowable levels of toxic chemicals consumable food is an unconscionable action on any governing body of the citizens of not only our country but the world. what one does effects all. Do not allow levels to be raised of the identified toxic, especially cancer causing substances.

I am also a cancer survivor who lives daily with the lingering fear of a recurrence or new cancer. I grew up eating NW finfish and shellfish on a 2-3 day/week basis. I still consume at least 1 meal weekly, and sometimes more, of our wonderful local finfish and shellfish gifts. That's weekly not monthly, even knowing the risks involved, because it is how I know to eat. It is my cultural and family tradition. I would love reassurance that the State has the best interests of local resident populations in mind in setting safe consumption risk levels, via realistic water quality standards, that are in keeping with many of our traditional, regional diets.

Washington State is not West Virginia or North Carolina (where it's not surprising that mass poisoning of rivers by industry is acceptable). What year did Rachel Carson publish Silent Spring? And we're still talking about it!
Dustin Noyes	Seattle, WA	2015-03-24	Our government should be RAISING health standards, not lowering them, even if it means inconveniences, costs or upset campaign contributors.
Matt Neslund	Seattle, WA	2015-03-24	I love locally caught fish. I need to be sure fish is a safe food.
fred young	seattle, WA	2015-03-24	I'm signing because safe water does not cause cancer.
Penelope Anne Cash	Seattle, WA	2015-03-24	the health of our planets water, air, earth should be top priority.....we can't live without it....and for those who do things for profit instead of common sense, think how much money you'll be saving in health care costs
Steven Burt	Manassas Park, VA	2015-03-24	Cancer is already a huge risk. Make our water cleaner. Remember, dead people can't vote.
Laura Grabhorn	Lacey, WA	2015-03-24	I eat fish several times a week and I don't think I'm unusual particularly in Western Washington. I absolutely believe that the State of Washington should represent what actually is consumed and NOT an artificially low figure to suit big corporation polluters. It is unacceptable to risk our seafood so that Boeing can cut more costs and pollute more. We've given THOSE people enough of our future and resources already.
Justin McReynolds	Seattle, WA	2015-03-24	I applaud the proposal for raising the fish consumption rate to a reasonable level, but it should not increase the acceptable cancer risk rate by a factor of ten.
Zachary Bursell	Bellingham, WA	2015-03-24	People who eat fish in Washington state shouldn't fear for their health.
Ian Luttrell	Seattle, WA	2015-03-24	I want to protect our waters, the wildlife that lives in it and our citizens health.
Sita Symonette	Portland, OR	2015-03-24	Raising cancer risks is unacceptable.
